

Coaching for Change

September 10 & 11, 2019

Summit Room, Thomas College, Waterville

Register by June 28, 2019

Led by Julie Wright, Diane Sweeney's east coast consultant.

Registration fees -- $200 Instructional Coaching Co-Op members; $300 non-members

Designed for educators who've attended a Student-Centered Coaching Foundations workshop with Julie.

Join us for a deeper dive into student-centered coaching practice. This two-day experience focuses on ways to use co-planning as the vehicle for instructional coaching and includes strategies from Julie Wright and Barry Hoonan's new book What are You Grouping for?

Participants will:

1. Learn a co-planning process using standards and learning targets.
 - Learn how "kidwatching" supports co-planning.
 - See co-planning modeled through a coaching lab.
 - Explore a unit planning process to guide coaching.
2. Explore how student-centered coaching can impact school and district culture.
3. Assess principal-coach relationship development.
4. Develop a coaching schedule.
5. Find your own personal thought partners.

Schedule

September 10: Registration 8:30 – 9:00; work and learning 9:00 – 3:00 (refreshments and lunch provided)

September 11: 9:00 – 3:00 work and learning (refreshments and lunch provided)
